

Jim Corbett

Due to its abundance of flora and fauna, Jim Corbett National Park is one of the most popular tourist destinations. Additionally, it is India's second-largest Tiger reserve after the Sunderbans. Hailey National Park was the name of the park when it first opened in 1936. There are more than 500 square kilometers in total.

LET'S BEGIN

Explore The Park

- The park was established on August 8, 1936, and it quickly rose to the top of India's national parks.
- The most breathtaking views of Garhwal may be found in Jim Corbett, which is close to the charming hill town of Nainital.
- It boasts more than 600 different species of trees, as well as lovely alpine vegetation, grasses, bushes, bamboo, ferns, and climbers.
- Many of the world's most endangered animals, including Asian elephants, alligators, and Sambhar deer, can be found in the park.

How To Reach?

By Air:

The closest domestic airport, located around 50 kilometers from the town, is Patanagar Airport. Taxi services are available from here.

By Bus:

Buses provide good service between Ramnagar and Corbett. Ramnagar is serviced by buses every day from Delhi, Haridwar, and Nainital.

By Rail:

The closest rail station to Jim Corbett is Ramnagar, which has connections to important cities including Delhi, Haridwar, Lucknow, and Varanasi.
